ANNA ALBERICI, D.O.

From inability to let
 well alone;
 from too much zeal
 for the new and contempt for what is old;
 from putting knowledge
 before wisdom,
 science before art,
 and cleverness before
 common sense;
 from treating patients
 as cases, and from making the cure of the disease more grievous than the
 endurance of the same,
 Good Lord,

A PHYSICIAN'S PRAYER
 Lord, Thou Great Physician, I kneel
 before Thee.
 Since every good and perfect gift must come from Thee, I pray:
 Give skill to my hand, clear vision to my mind, kindness and sympathy to my heart.
 Give me singleness of purpose, strength to lift at least part of the burden of my suffering fellowman, and a true realization of the rare privilege that is mine.
 Take from my heart all guile and worldliness that with the simple faith of a child I may rely on Thee.
 Amen

Promise Yourself —

To be so strong that nothing can disturb your peace of mind. — To talk health, happiness and prosperity to every person you meet. — To make all your friends feel that there is something in them. — To look at the sunny side of everything and make your optimism come true. — To think only of the best, to work only for the best and expect only the best. — To be just as enthusiastic about the success of others as you are about your own. — To forget the mistakes of the past and press on to the greater achievements of the future. — To wear a cheerful countenance at all times and give every living creature you meet a smile. — To give so much time to the improvement of yourself that you have no time to criticize others. — To be too large for worry, too noble for anger, too strong for fear, and too happy to permit the presence of trouble.

MARK J. STONE, D. O.

The nurse handed the doctor a chart, and the doctor translated the long and the short of it to Raleigh. The long of it was several paragraphs of thoroughly obscure Latin-rooted words, for which the doctor had paid so many thousands of dollars in tuition that naturally he wanted to use as many as possible. (And truly they were very valuable words, as valuable and powerful as any other priestly mumbo jumbo — for they meant the considerable difference between his income and that of the nurse, compelling the nurse to call him “sir”, and obey his orders to hand him things that were six inches away.) So the doctor got his money’s worth out of the long of it.

ADMINISTRATION & STAFF

It is with great pride that I congratulate you, the UMDNJ-School of Osteopathic Medicine's graduating Class of 1988. Since its humble beginnings just a decade ago, it has become a proud tradition at UMDNJ-SOM for our students to consistently score at the top among osteopathic medical schools. The class of '88 has steadfastly upheld this standard of excellence that has helped SOM continue its rapid evolution as the nation's number one osteopathic medical school.

You are among the last classes to have a split campus. By the year 1990, the UMDNJ-SOM will be unified on one Southern New Jersey site. Construction begins this summer on our second new building at Stratford; and two more will follow soon. When you return to your alma mater in the future and see the campus, its buildings nestled conveniently together, you'll marvel at how you managed to shuttle back and forth between Piscataway to Stratford during your first two years of medical school.

The future ahead of you is bright. But, there are no shortages of obstacles to overcome, nor challenges to be met. You have learned the latest technology and the newest techniques. You have at your disposal, prevention and treatment modalities that were unheard of, even a generation ago. Pharmaceutical developments and computer technology continues to advance and extend the healing skills you now possess. Yet, there are new frontiers for you to brave; different challenges to meet. Former generations of physicians were charged with solving the problems of deadly childhood diseases and baffling infection. Today, your challenge is to find answers for other mysteries, such as AIDS, aging and mental disorders. New technology empowers you to save and sustain life as never before. Now, you must help your patients enrich the quality of that life, so that it is worth living. You have deposited in your bank of knowledge sound principles of wellness. Now, in practice, you will build with your patients the trust and two-way communications that are needed before they are persuaded to follow those principles. Exotic pharmaceutical developments make miracles possible every day. But, no drug can ever take the place of the healing hands of a well-trained, attentive and dedicated physician.

Many new physicians graduate this year; well-schooled and prepared to practice medicine. But, health care in the 21st century will demand a special kind of medicine. Osteopathic medicine. The kind of medicine that has distinguished the osteopathic physician for more than a century. The holistic, hands-on brand of medicine that sets you, the Class of '88, apart from all the others. The challenge is great, but the rewards are without measure. I know that each and every one of you will make us proud. Good luck.

FIFTEENTH

THE OSTEOPATHIC OATH

I do hereby affirm my loyalty to the profession I am about to enter.

I will be mindful always of my great responsibility to preserve the health and the life of my patients, to retain their confidence and respect both as a physician and a friend who will guard their secrets with scrupulous honor and fidelity, to perform faithfully my professional duties, to employ only those recognized methods of treatment consistent with good judgment and with my skill and ability, keeping in mind always nature's laws and the body's inherent capacity for recovery.

I will be ever vigilant in aiding in the general welfare of the community, sustaining its laws and institutions, not engaging in those practices which will in any way bring shame or discredit upon myself or my profession.

I will give no drugs for deadly purposes to any person, though it be asked of me.

I will endeavor to work in accord with my colleagues in a spirit of progressive cooperation, and never by word or by act cast imputations upon them or their rightful practices.

I will look with respect and esteem upon all those who have taught me my art. To my college I will be loyal and strive always for its best interests and for the interests of the students who will come after me.
